Q1	 Read the following passage carefully : Twenty-six-year-old V Khanna is not your garden variety green crusader. He's on a mission to cure 'tree blindness'- the habit of not looking at trees. "People just walk past them," he complains. Khanna, as part of New Delhi Nature Society which he set up last year, is educating Delhiites about trees in a unique way- by teaching them how to climb them. A generation ago, the practice was commonplace but with today's increasingly indoor living, learning to scale the neem next door sounds like a spot of daredevilry. "Spending time with nature and climbing trees has become a spiritual exercise for me. Once you're in a tree, you become part of its ecosystem, which includes birds, insects, fruits and flowers", says Wadhwa who can spend 40-45 minutes hanging out on tree branches, sometimes with a cup of green tea in hand. But it's all about barking up the tree right. "It depends on how and where you sit," Khanna points out. "You have to find a cozy nook, maybe a Y-or a V-shaped branch. Find a hook to rest your arm. Or, you can lie down. It can get so comfortable that I have to warn people from falling off to sleep." A trained commercial pilot, Khanna organizes periodic campouts around Delhi where he not only teaches members how to climb trees, but also to make a fire, count GPS satellites and count stars. 4. While Khanna provides tents and other equipment on these free jaunts, participants must bring their own food. The tree-lover funds his woody ambitions with his day job as business developer and as a light painting artist at OLE India- a collaborative of professionals and free thinkers. He has also uploaded tree-climbing tutorials on YouTube. When climbing a straight trunk (coconut or palm), ascend using both arms in tandem (like in a hug) instead of alternating them. But banyan trees, with thick, low lying branches and vines offer a relatively easy climb. 	12
	 5. Anyone can join NDNS and it's free. The year-old society has been attracting members through word of mouth and sight- the image of men and women sitting atop trees in various city parks. Khanna has organized six outdoor camps in the past year and has taught around 30 people to climb trees. Once up, he briefs participants about the tree and its ecosystem. Details like what kind of fruit and flower it bears, their benefits, the shape and size of leaves, kinds of insects, birds and squirrels living on it, any folk tales associated with it are discussed and shared. 6. If you want to do the climbing yourself, look for a sturdy tree which doesn't have red ants on its branches and is clear of broken glass or injury- causing material at its base. Its branches should be thicker than your arm. When you climb, never go right to the edge of the branch. The aim is not to climb high but to find a comfortable resting place with a good back rest. Climb slowly and keep close to the tree; it will support you. Neem, mango and banyan trees are easy to climb.

	Answer the following questions, based on the passage above.
	i. What is the aim of climbing a tree if you want to do it yourself?	1

Q1	 Read the following text: Twenty-six-year-old V Khanna is not your garden variety green crusader. He's on a mission to cure 'tree blindness'- the habit of not looking at trees. "People just walk past them," he complains. Khanna, as part of New Delhi Nature Society which he set up last year, is educating Delhiites about trees in a unique way- by teaching them how to climb them. A generation ago, the practice was commonplace but with today's increasingly indoor living, learning to scale the neem next door sounds like a spot of daredevilry. "Spending time with nature and climbing trees has become a spiritual exercise for me. Once you're in a tree, you become part of its ecosystem, which includes birds, insects, fruits and flowers", says Wadhwa who can spend 40-45 minutes hanging out on tree branches, sometimes with a cup of green tea in hand. But it's all about barking up the tree right. "It depends on how and where you sit," Khanna points out. "You have to find a cozy nook, maybe a Y-or a V-shaped branch. Find a hook to rest your arm. Or, you can lie down. It can get so comfortable that I have to warn people from falling off to sleep." A trained commercial pilot, Khanna organizes periodic campouts around Delhi where he not only teaches members how to climb trees, but also to make a fire, count GPS satellites and count stars. 4. While Khanna provides tents and other equipment on these free jaunts, participants must bring their own food. The tree-lover funds his woody ambitions with his day job as business developer and as a light painting artist at OLE India- a collaborative of professionals and free thinkers. He has also uploaded tree-climbing tutorials on YouTube. When climbing a straight trunk (coconut or palm), ascend using both arms in tandem (like in a hug) instead of alternating them. But banyan 	12
	 5. Anyone can join NDNS and it's free. The year-old society has been attracting members through word of mouth and sight- the image of men and women sitting atop trees in various city parks. Khanna has organized six outdoor camps in the past year and has taught around 30 people to climb trees. Once up, he briefs participants about the tree and its ecosystem. Details like what kind of fruit and flower it bears, their benefits, the shape and size of leaves, kinds of insects, birds and squirrels living on it, any folk tales associated with it are discussed and shared. 6. If you want to do the climbing yourself, look for a sturdy tree which doesn't have red ants on its branches and is clear of broken glass or injury- causing material at its base. Its branches should be thicker than your arm. When you climb, never go right to the edge of the branch. The aim is not to climb high but to find a comfortable resting place with a good back rest. Climb slowly and keep close to the tree; it will support you. Neem, mango and banyan trees are easy to climb.

	Answer the following questions, based on the passage above.
	i. What is the aim of climbing a tree if you want to do it yourself?
	A)Go as high as possible to get a good view	1 B(Climb only neem, mango and banyan trees C)Find a comfortable resting place with a good back rest D)None of the above ii Comment on the writer's statement that climbing trees is a sport of daredevilry now.	2
	iii. List the activities that the members of the NDNS club participate in.
	iv. Select the option that conveys the meaning 'Biological environment', from	1 words used in para 2.	1
	A)Indoor B)Outdoor
	C)Ecosystem
	DNature
	v. The NDNS initiative does not only teach people how to climb trees but also	2 teaches them about the trees and its ecosystem. Do you agree? Give reasons for your answer.
	vi. Why is Khanna's way of teaching about trees unique?	1
	vii. Explain, in about 40 words, why the writer called disregard for trees as	1
	'tree blindness.'	2
	viii. Account the measures taken by Khanna to promote tree climbing.	1
	ix. Select the most suitable title for the above passage.	1
	A)Protecting Trees
	B)A Unique Way of Recognising Trees
	C)Curing Tree Blindness D) a sustant Llour to Olivela Tress D)Learning How to Climb Trees

Q12	a)Suggested value points	5
	Lost Spring - fear stops one from growing - will handicap a person - lead to exploitation of the fearful one like the people in Firozabad who are afraid of "the vicious circle" and hence are suppressed.
	Indigo - fear of landlords – led to exploitation and suppression of share croppers - overcome fear - live a meaningful life - standup for their rights (any other relevant point)
	Or
	b) In today's fast-paced world, many young people often act impulsively, without considering the impact their actions may have on others. The incident in "Deep Water," where a boy thoughtlessly threatens and terrifies another, highlights a growing concern— a lack of empathy and consideration among the youth. Such behaviorthough often dismissed as harmless fun, can have long-lasting psychological effects on others, shaping their fears and insecurities.
Q13	(a). Suggested value points:- Importance of Humour - laughter best medicine - stress	5
1	buster - helps face critical situation with ease - tense situations are resolved.
	Textual reference: - threat to kingdom- a tense situation gets diffused when Duraisani keeps all fifty rings - kings failure to shoot more than seventy tigers gets diffused when the king holds discussion about marriage - humour in the way the hundredth tiger is brought from Madras and how it behaves before and after being shot at.

	protagonist, Charley, discovers a mysterious third level at Grand Central Station, which serves as a gateway to the past. This blending of the mundane with the fantastical suggests that alternate realities might coexist with our own. Similarly, "The Adventure" introduces Professor Gaitonde, who experiences an alternate version of Indian history after a collision. Both stories highlight the thin veil between reality and fantasy, suggesting that the past, present, and future may not be as fixed as we believe.

Contrast:
While "The Third Level" focuses on a nostalgic longing for a simpler, safer past, "The Adventure" delves into the complexities of history and the impact of alternate outcomes on the present. Finney's story is more introspective and personal, centered around Charley's desire to escape the pressures of modern life. In contrast, Narlikar's narrative is broader, examining the consequences of historical events on a national and even global scale.
In essence, both stories explore the interplay between fantasy and reality but do so with different themes and scales of impact.

Q10	i. Keeping Quiet makes us introspect and reflect upon our actions. 2. Self	5×2=10 introspection-helps us better understand ourselves and what we want. It enables us to realize that many of our mindless actions are only harming us and not giving us happiness.
	ii.Seemapuri is the place which is situated on the periphery of Delhi. More than 10,000 rag pickers live in this area. The settlers are the people who are the immigrants from Bangladesh. Their houses are structures of mud. They have roofs of tin and tarpaulin. Has been infamous for its squalid living conditions, poor sanitation, and lack of basic amenities- very underdeveloped iii. The words appeared startling and unexpected like a thunderclap. He now understood why there was a crowd at the bulletin board, why the village people had come to school, why the teacher was dressed in his Sunday best and why there was sadness and silence in the school. He felt very guilty for deliberately ignoring to learn his native language and he suddenly developed a strange fascination for his language and his teacher M. Hamel. iv Yes. The decision was right. According to Gandhiji the amount of the refund was ii.A true patriot and took immense pride in Japanese culture and traditions. He never joked or played with his son. His father was stern but cared a lot for his future. Sadao didn't marry Hana until he knew she was Japanese because his father wouldn't have approved of her otherwise. The old man never let any foreign object even enter his room.

	iii.Antarctica gives us an idea, how the earth would have been like millions of years ago and how it got divided into various earth masses. The melting and colliding ice masses also give us an insight into how our future is going to be, if we continue with interference in the working of the nature. Moreover, Antarctica holds into the depths of its ice half-million year old carbon records, which are helpful in understanding the past, present and future of the earth. Therefore, Antarctica is the place which reveals our past, shows our present and visualizes our future.
Q12	i. You may begin like this	5
	Good morning, students! We all know what it's like to be afraid. Fear is our body's natural response to a perceived threat or danger. But when Ans. Fear immobilizes us and prevents us from progressing – as in the case of William Douglas – due to his fear of water he could not lead a normal life – could not go fishing, canoeing, etc. Similarly, due to their fear of the Britishers, the peasants of Champaran could not take a stand for their rights.
	\cdot Need to face our fear, devise a plan and work through it – William Douglas worked through his fear rather than giving into it. When the peasants gathered around the courthouse in Motihari, it was a step towards overcoming their fear.
	· Require determination – persistence – it took Douglas months to overcome his fear of water and learn swimming. It took nearly a year to get justice for the peasants in Champaran.

	\cdot Strength in unity when fighting a common fear- only when the people in Champaran were able to overcome their fear and fight for justice \cdot But once overcome, one is free to live his / her life to the fullest. (Any 4 points to be included) (Accept associated Q13	i. Both of them faced discrimination; Zitkala Sa was discriminated against because of	5 cultural differences while Bama faced discrimination due to her caste.

	\cdot Zitkala sa rebelled and refused to get her hair cut. She put up a strong fight, though had to give in finally. Bama was enraged and wanted to go and touch the packet of vadai to teach a lesson to the landlord. But was guided by her elder brother to calm down. He showed her the path to overcome discrimination.
	\cdot Both of them worked hard to excel in education.
	• Both succeeded as writers among other things; they have written much against discrimination and evils of oppression, thus continuing the fight for justice for their communities
	ii. Dr. Sadao was a patriotic Japanese as well as a dedicated surgeon. He honoured both the values excellently. It was his duty, as a surgeon, to save the life of a man irrespective of caste, colour, or creed. For a doctor, his patient is beyond any prejudice. When Dr. Sadao saw the white man, he realised that the man would die if he was not immediately operated upon. So, he took the man to his house and treated him and saved his life. That was his duty as a dedicated doctor. Dr.Sadao was a loyal citizen of Japan and a true patriot. So, when he went to the General, he told him everything and sought his help. Dr. Sadao had no pity for the white man and considered him his enemy. considered min inscremy.
	The Tiger King was not interested and bothered about working for public welfare.
	When the king heard the prophecy of his death by a tiger, he swore to kill all the tigers of Pratibandapuram just to conclude the prophecy was wrong. He was so indulged in killing the tigers that he did not pay even a bit of attention towards his subjects, till the population of the tiger came to an end. He kept on wiping off the tigers in the name of self-defence and harsh measurements were invoked by the king to pressurize local innocent people in the name of self-worth and importance. His indulgence towards the benefit of the kingdom was diminished by his preoccupied thoughts over the talking from the chief astrologer and his prophecy. Though he was educated by an Englishman, his ideologies were savage. He spent his whole life running and gunning down tigers in the forest thus disbalancing the ecosystem. Lastly, his pursuit did not make any sense as his demise was called out by a handcrafted wooden tiger.
